This spring, Mr. and Ms. Kato left Tokyo with their son, Taro. They lived in Hita because Mr. Kato had a new job at a high school there. Taro started to go to school in the town. Taro sat near Ken in the classroom at the school. Ken was the first boy that spoke to Taro.

Last Sunday Taro's family went on a picnic to the mountain with Ken. They started early in the morning. After they walked for two hours, they came to a small river. Ken said, "Let's stop (あ) here. A lot of people who go up to this mountain usually spend a short time here. (い) They forget that they are tired because they wash their faces with water of this river." Taro's family and Ken washed their faces.

They got to the top of the mountain at noon. Ms. Kato said, "We are now in another world. The air is fresh." "I have come here with my parents many times. I can see very beautiful mountains today." said Ken.

After lunch, Ken and Taro enjoyed walking around. (う) They found (a lot of / beautiful / which / flowers / were not / in Tokyo / seen). Taro wanted to take some flowers home, but Ken stopped Taro. "You cannot take them because we (え) () think about the natural environments* on the earth." When Taro heard this, he thought he learned an important thing from Ken.
